GPS is changing. This year saw the inauguration of a new headmaster, the beginning of a new era. Progress is the word now, and its effects are evident everywhere: in exciting, different ideas, in new outlooks, in renewed spirit; and yet, the new and different remain framed in the old and traditional. GPS will never stray from her ideals and beliefs in an institution dedicated to girls, their education and development in mind and character.

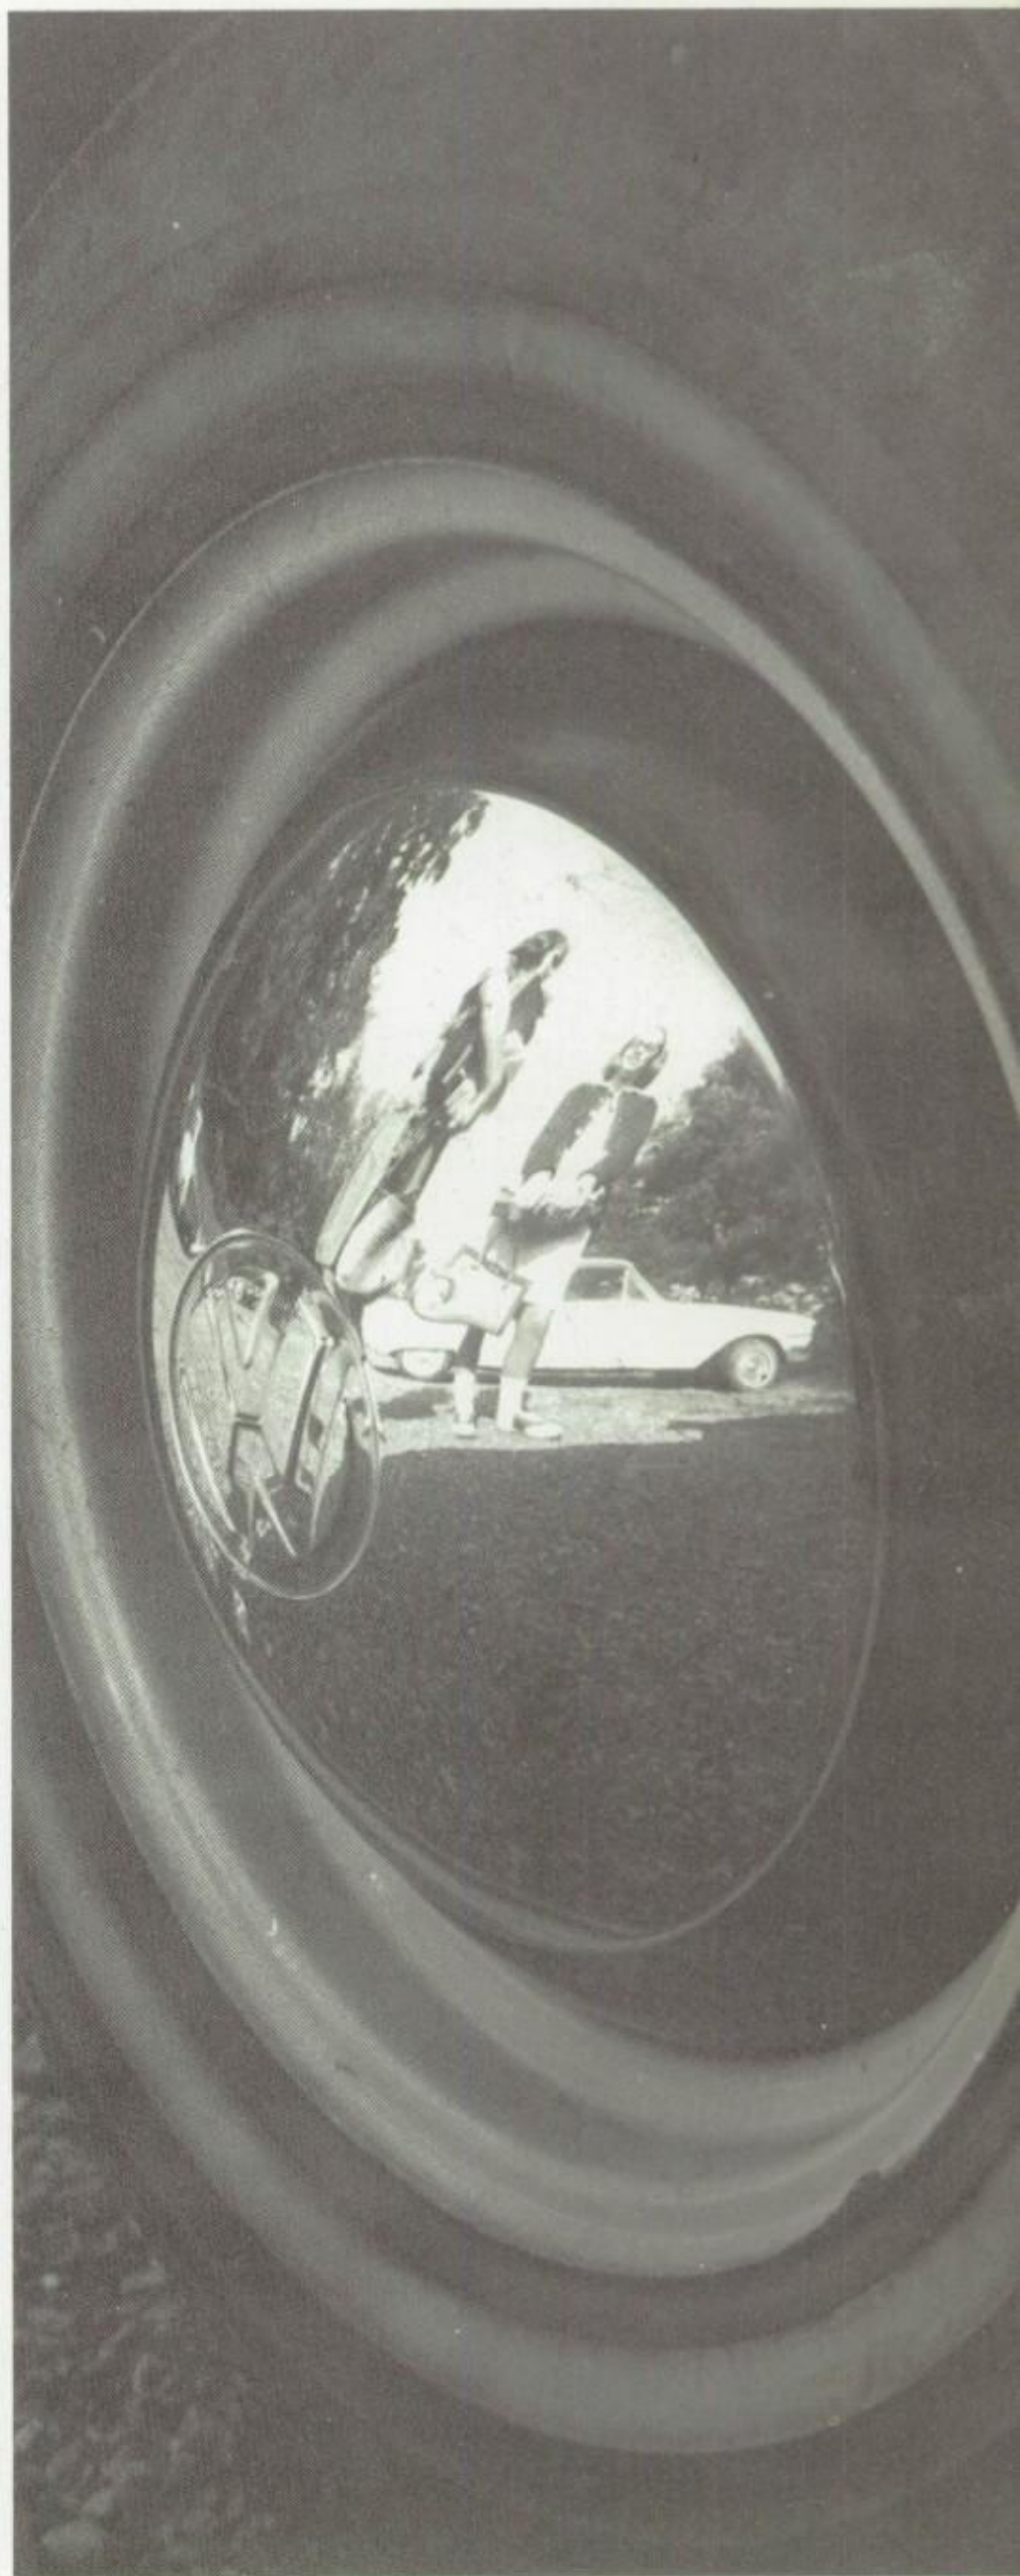

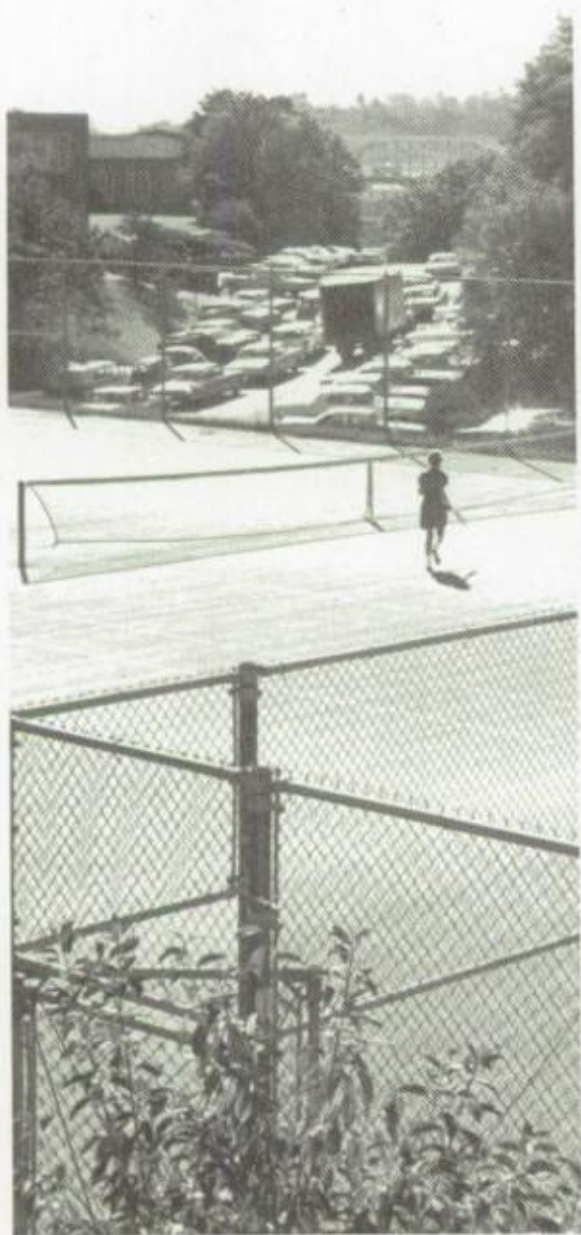

Yes, change does occur in any human society, in spite of its seeming immutability; GPS is no exception to this rule, for she herself is an ever changing kaleidoscope. And yet, tradition must continue.

Any tradition of lasting value must have worth in the world of today; its significance and value must not be dated else it be replaced. However, these changes that replace the old must be ultimately reconcilable with long standing traditions. Thus it is that tradition is ordered change and change is vital tradition.

1966-67 was the year for change at GPS. For the first time in many years, a slight alteration in the conventional uniform improved our appearance; the familiar corridors acquired a new coat of paint and the entire school benefited from the new overall air conditioning system. But perhaps all these physical changes were overshadowed by the most radical change of all: for this year, for the first time, the opportunity to give chapel talks, a tradition long reserved strictly for seniors, was extended to the faculty members. Through their talks, the teachers revealed to us a new aspect of their personalities.

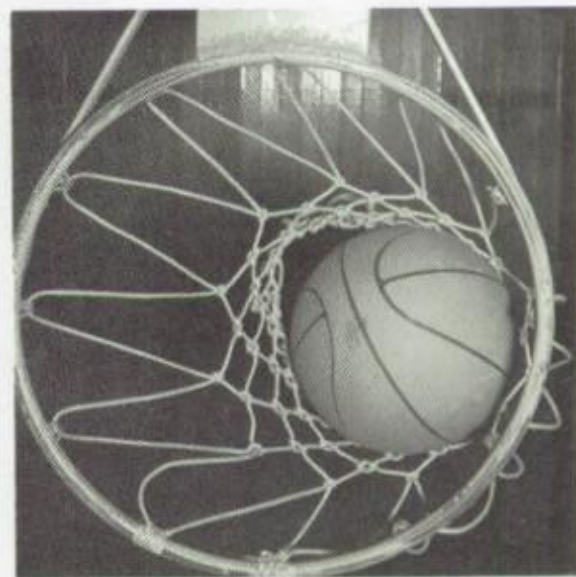

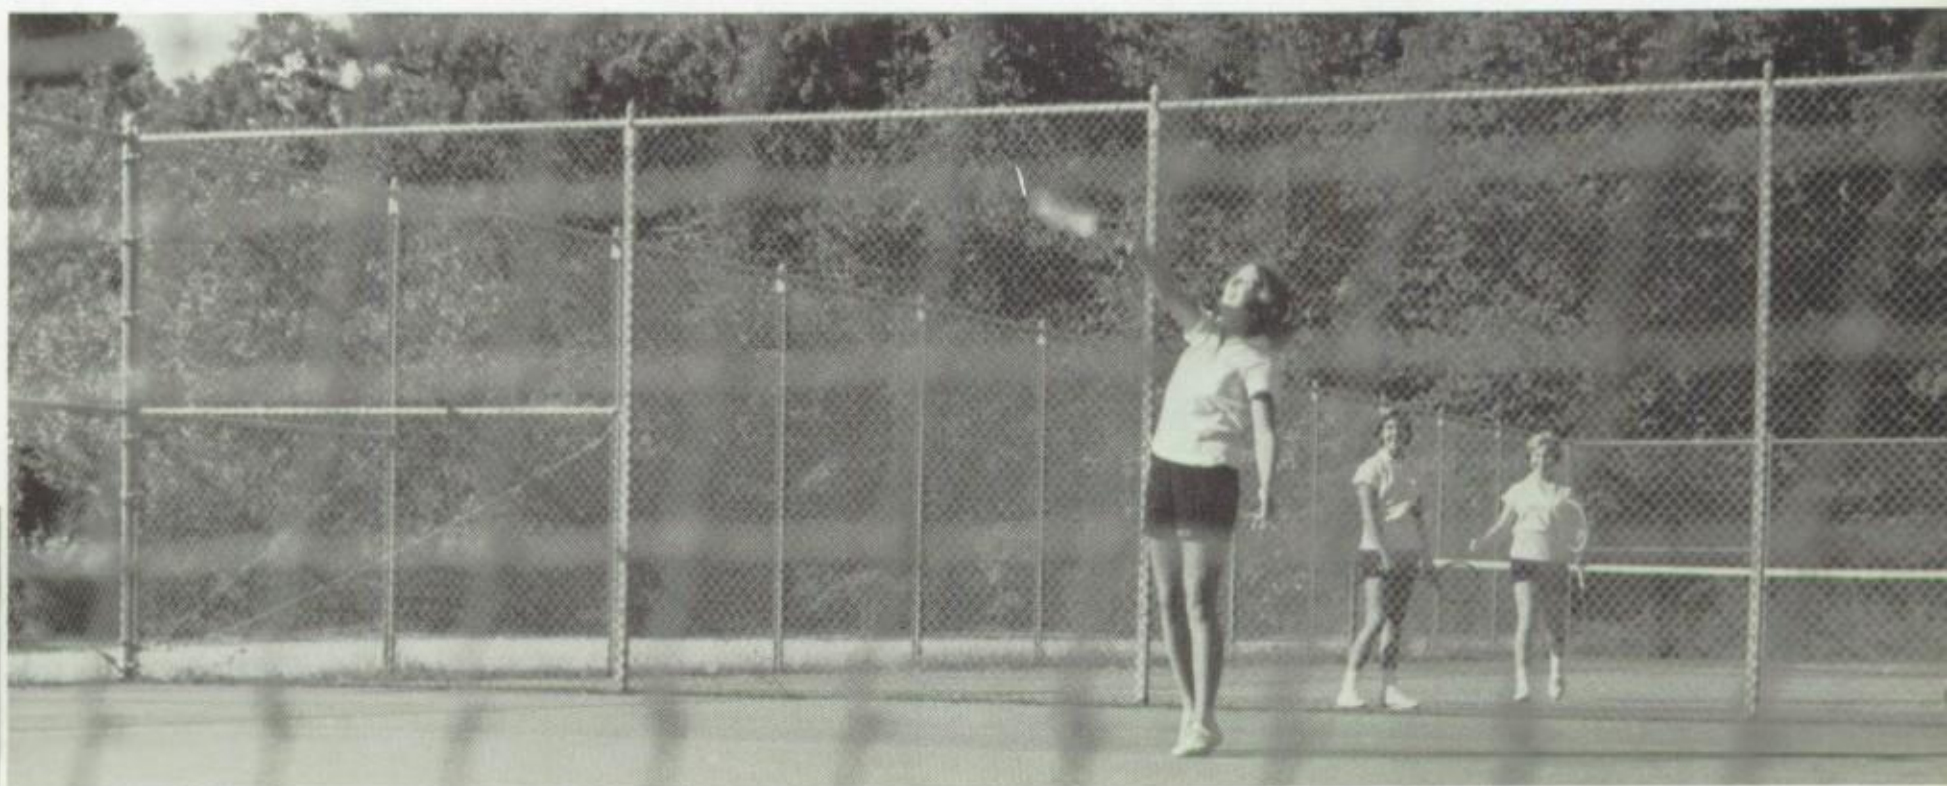

The goal of a secondary school is to educate its students; thus it is that the educational pursuits at GPS remain basically the same. Classes and the quest for intellectual knowledge fill the day of a GPS girl, and each new day brings the chance to acquire additional knowledge. The awakening mind can find nothing more thrilling than an opportunity to learn, and at GPS, the faculty strives to kindle an enthusiasm for learning in the mind and heart of every girl.

The physical aspect of education must not be overlooked as a girl strives to develop her mental capacities. Competing for physical achievement is just as important to a girl's overall development as striving for scholastic excellence.

Education is more than a mere learning process; it is the development of the mind, and any teacher who has a sincere interest in her students as individuals, plays a vital role in that development.

As a teacher, Miss Whitaker has constantly faced the challenge of instilling in the GPS girl a basic knowledge of this country's history and government and a deep love for the American heritage. She has endeavored not only to teach the facts of history—the important names, dates and places—but also to relate the thoughts and ideas which give those facts their significance.

For forty-six years, she has dedicated herself to what she believes to be the most exciting, the most adventurous, the most thrilling of all professions. Because we, the class of '67, feel that such a life of self-sacrifice and devotion to others ought to be measured in terms of deeds rather than years, Miss Whitaker, we dedicate this annual to you.

Miss Ulrica Whitaker explains an important American battle.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul G. Bode continue to work as a team during their first year at GPS.

Whether listening to a teacher's plans for a special project or discussing a parent's concern for her child, Mr. Bode is sincerely interested in others and is willing to go to any length to help them.

As he greets a student with a cheery good morning or casually chats with a parent in the afternoon, his manner is always cordial. An avid spectator of all GPS sports, he is an enthusiastic person who shares his enthusiasm with others. Cheering both Blacks and Blues, he is always for the GPS girl. In conducting chapel or meeting with the Board members, in any situation, he is well at ease.

A true gentleman with a sparkling sense of humor and an easy going manner, he has won the respect and admiration of us all.

We the class of '67 take great pride in dedicating this Kaleidoscope to you, Mr. Bode.

One that desires to excel should endeavor it in those things that are in themselves most excellent.

Student Council

We, the students of GPS, in order to promote high ideals, to increase school spirit, and to foster recreational and scholastic activities have established a student government. It is called the Student Council with a principal committee called an Honor Court. According to the constitution of this organization, membership is extended to the entire student body and representation is determined by class elections. Each girl on the council is a personal representative of all girls. Three faculty representatives serve as advisors to the council, and the headmaster maintains the power of veto.

Areopagus

Areopagus is a literary discussion group for select senior students. In its five meetings, the group, under the guidance of an authority in the field being studied, discuss various classics, modern novels and plays. This year's selections included Plato's Republic, The Oresteia by Aeschylus, Mourning Becomes Electra by Eugene O'Neill and Machiavelli's The Prince.

The Library Club is composed of Freshman girls who excel in English; membership is considered an honor. The members run errands and do chores for Mrs. Bridge in addition to keeping the library records in order. These girls devote one study Hall a week to fulfill their duties.

Welfare Club

Patty Bullard, president of the Welfare Club, introduces the speakers for their February first program.

Donna Oehmig, secretary, balances the books and keeps an accurate account of all donations.

Every member of the student body is a member of the Welfare Club; each class elects one representative who is responsible for welfare activities in her grade. This year, the Welfare Club has been highly successful. In the fall drive, the club has supported a foster child, the United Fund, the March of Dimes and the 365 Club.

Annual Board

Win some, lose some—but what about those that get rained out? Left to right: Libba McNeill, Mrs. Clark and Lynn Grisard

The Annual Board—"This morning we have a personalized announcement from Lynn and Libba"—sells books and—"Do ya'll have any bows?"—other necessary supplies. Patiently guided by Mrs. Clark—"Now try to get those write-ups in"—this industrious group—"Hey, can ya'll stay this afternoon?"—endeavors to present in a new and original manner life at GPS.

Whether it be taking pictures, doing lay-outs or writing copy, there is much work to be done. But somehow—"Here, I can type those for you"—those deadlines—"Forty-eight pages by next week?!!"—are always met. Combining the talents and efforts—"Ya'll please help us think of some good ideas for"—of ten girls, the Annual Board is dependent upon teamwork.

Barbara Steele and Helen McCallie continue to work assiduously on class lay-outs.

Intramural Sports

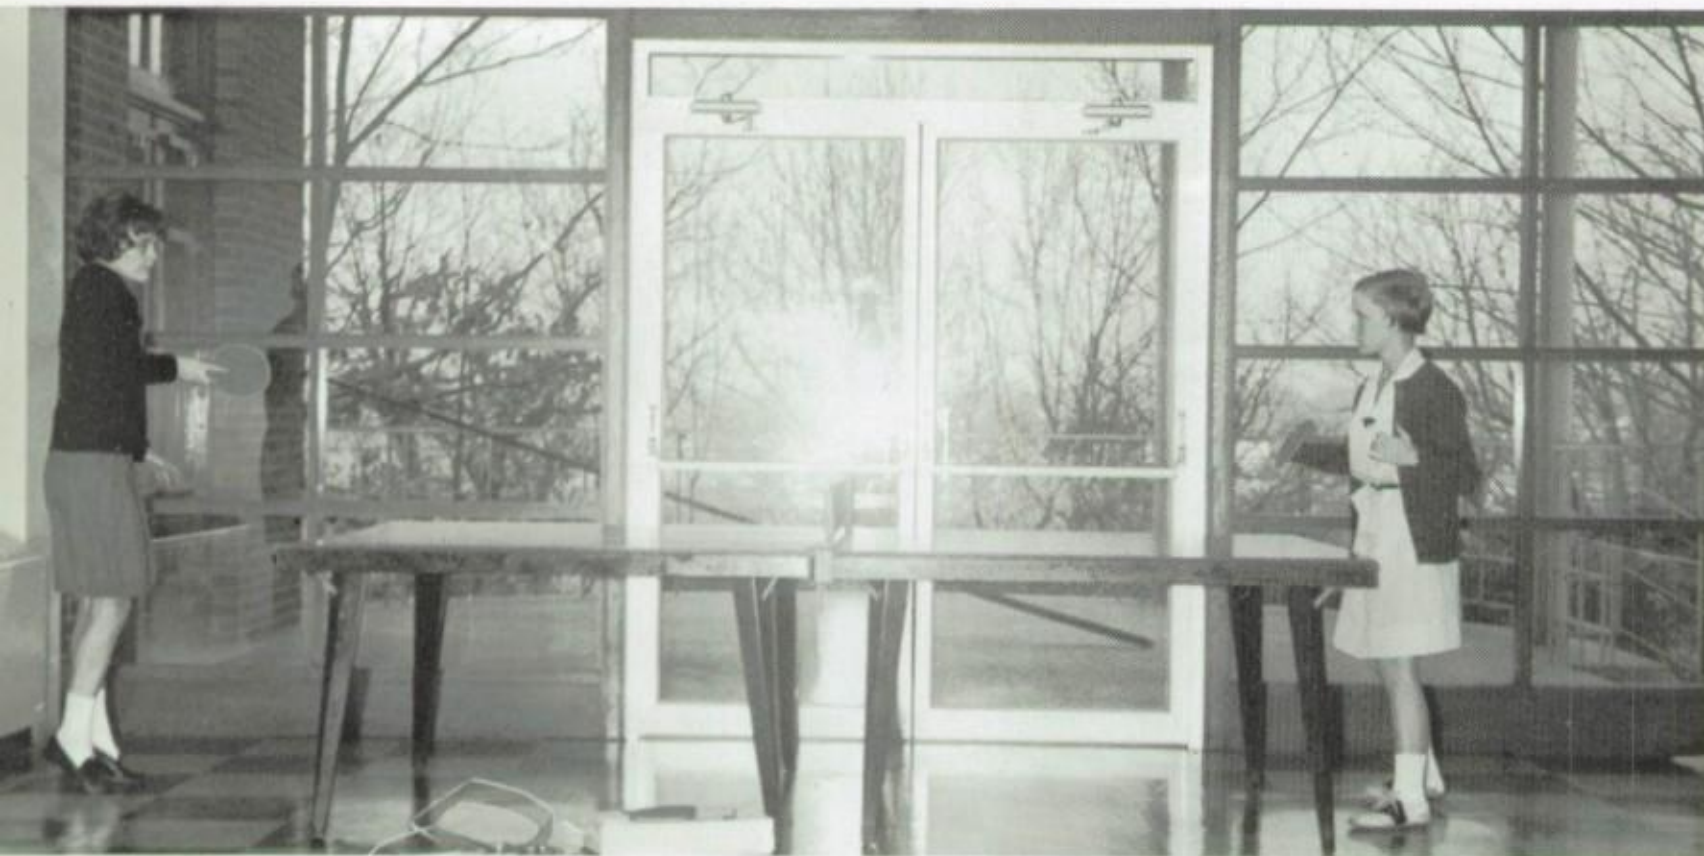

The "junior schoolers" participate in their annual field day.

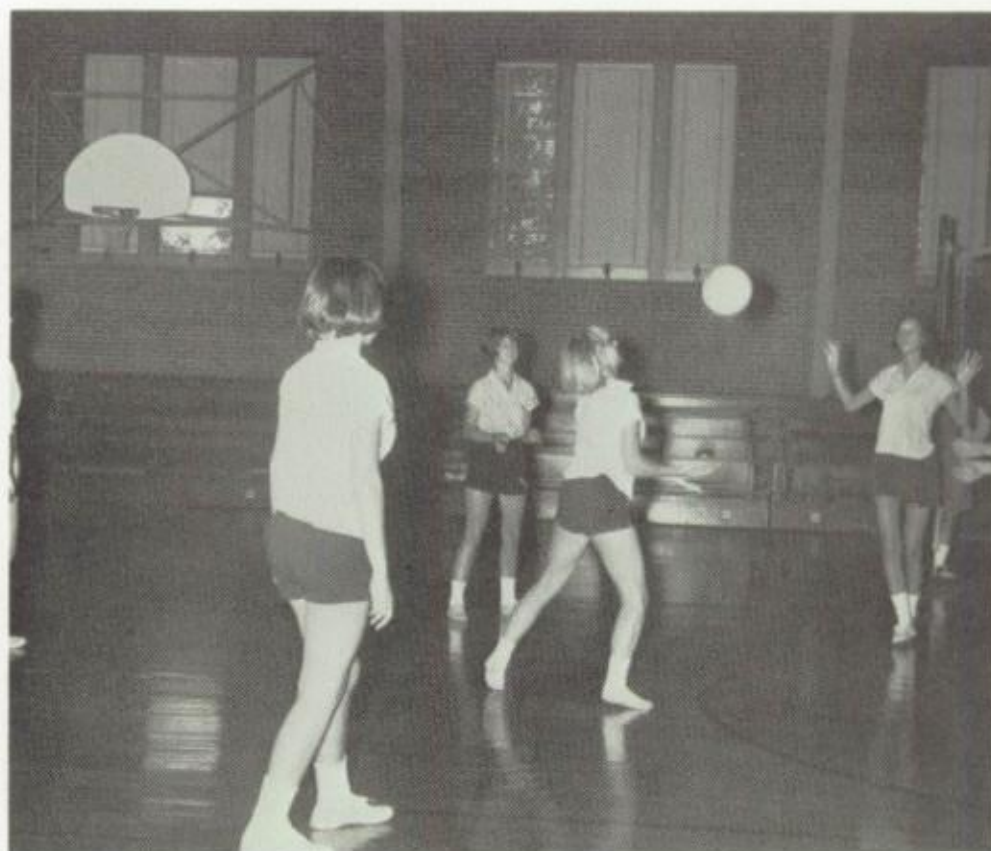

Intramurals are the highlighted events of GPS's athletics. Every girl has the chance to demonstrate her skills in such stimulating sports as basketball, tennis, volleyball, swimming, ping pong, shuffleboard, and badminton. For every event a girl enters, she receives a certain number of points. When she has accumulated 350 points, she receives her intramural letter. The points each girl receives go not only toward her letter but also toward her team. At the end of the year, a trophy is awarded to the team, black or blue, which has accumulated the most points.

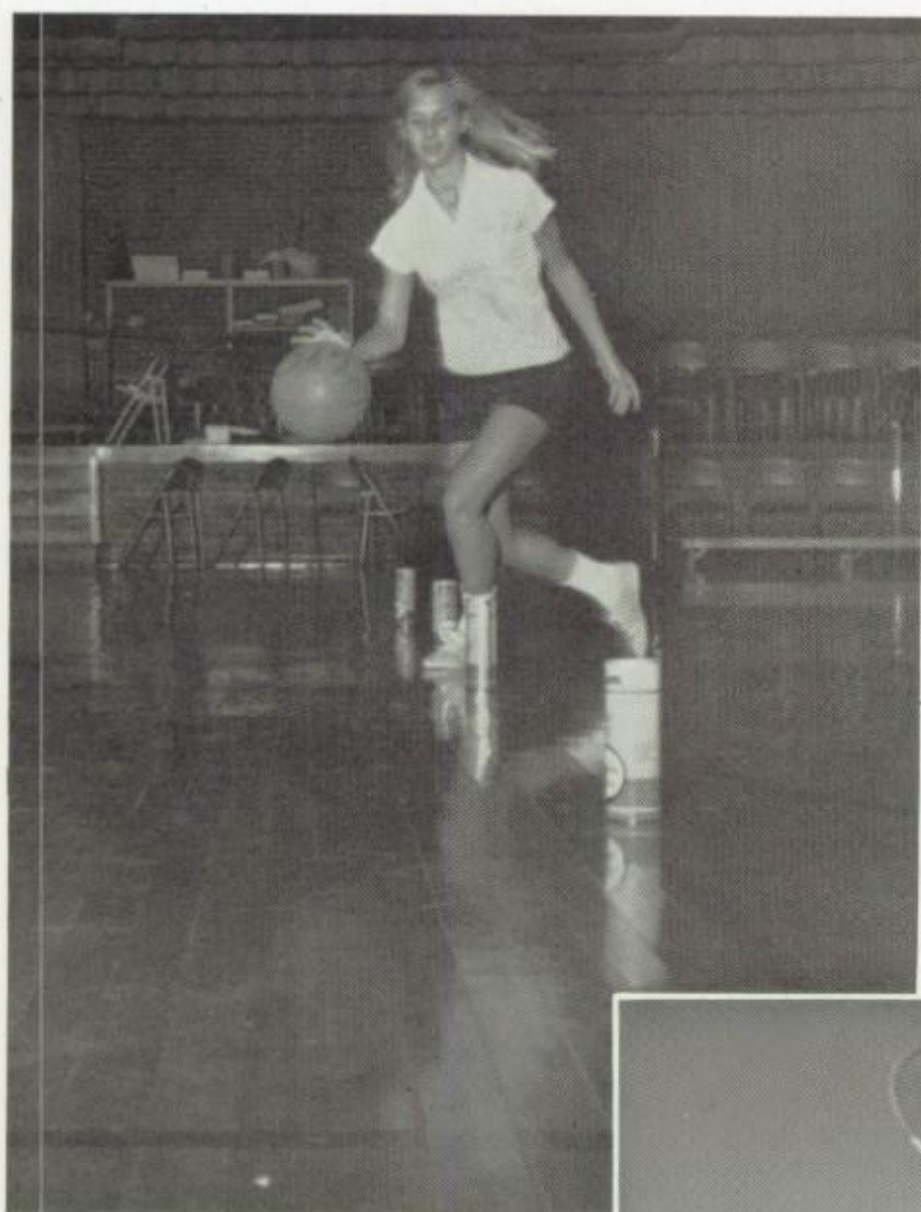

The swimming meet is one of the most important intramural events.

The ping pong tournament is a favorite of everyone.

"Say 'mine' not 'yours'!"

Practice makes perfect.

When it's your cue, you have to move.

It takes that extra spurt of energy to make a champion.

Activities

The animation of youth overflows spontaneously in harmonious movement.

Magical though it may seem, May Day, with all its pageantry and array of seniors in pastel gowns, does not happen by mere magic. It is an intricately planned program requiring the combined efforts of Mrs. Peggy Thomas, Mrs. Margaret Glenn, Miss Charlotte Bridge, Terpsichord, and the entire senior class.

TORY SCHOOL

Freshmen-Sophomore Dance

April 7th was a short night for the members of the Freshman and Sophomore classes and their dates who, swinging to the music of the Aztecs, danced the night away.

Go, go, get em, get 'em, umph, umph!

Put on a pretty face!

Grind it dead out!

Play hard to get!

Three's not bad for one nights work.

"Oh, baby come on . . ."

THESE are the girls that the girl-watchers watch?

Can't get enough of you, baby.

"If you call me that one more time . . ."

Junior-Senior Dance

"Now don't forget; it's 1,2,3,4; 1,2,3,4."

The Assistant Skipper meets the Helm.

Our new headmaster is really working out.

A softly lighted, beautifully decorated setting, sentimental no-breaks, long flowing dresses and white mess jackets a vision of loveliness, a traditional dream, a night never to be forgotten—May 6, the Junior-Senior Prom.

Punch is like that; yea, it is.

The real thing?

Going or coming?

He's telling her that things go better with Coke. They'll probably go on talking about Coke all night.

"I told you that was a flying saucer."

The word gets around.

Junior-Senior Dance

"Is this the way the French do it, Miss Battle?"

The Jr.-Sr. Dance held Saturday, November 19, under the guidance of the Marvels was a memorable occasion. The gyrations of the dancers are something yet to be seen. A small portion of their coordination(?) has been preserved here.

"Why doesn't anybody talk to me—you'd think I have bad breath or something."

So there's the girl I have a late date with!

Hey—he really did break his leg!

Cat-Rat Week

It's a week of orientation, a chance to learn new names and faces, to make new friends and to become better acquainted with life at G.P.S. It's the seventh graders versus the mighty seniors, and the name of the game is Rat Week.

Assemblies

The Student Council sponsored Miss Gerry Bailey, a GPS graduate, who spoke to us on her life in Greece and sang several Greek folk songs.

Dr. Ralph Mohny, pastor of Centenary Methodist Church, discussed on October 12, his memorable trip to the Holy Land.

A highlight of the assembly programs was a concert presented by the Vanderbilt University Male Chorus.

The entire student body was moved by the program Mr. Mose and Mr. Garrison Siskin, and their tiny, handicapped performers presented to us.

On October 5, the GPS Rotary Entertainers gave their second performance, this time before the student body.

The student body was presented with a sneak preview of college life by Dr. W. H. Masterson, President of U.C., and Mr. Walter Hall, vice-president of Development.

Francie Thompson and Erin Yon are two of our seventh grade entertainers.

Miss Karen Paul, a former GPS student, entertained us in October with an account of her experiences in Argentina as an Experimenter in International Living.

The students give full attention to the assembly program for that afternoon.

Assembly takes place every Wednesday, eighth period. During this time, students benefit from talks given by prominent members of the community, or programs sponsored by various groups of the student body.

Clubs

Employ your time well if you mean to gain leisure;
leisure is time for doing something useful.

Senior and Junior

The Junior and Senior Theatre Arts Clubs are of interest to those girls who enjoy drama and acting. Under the direction of Mrs. James E. Hitt, the members study the various techniques of acting and the types of drama. The Senior Theatre Arts is for Sophomores, and Juniors. The Freshmen comprise the junior club. The members of these two clubs collaborated in the production of "Little Women" and "The Light That Shone", a special Christmas play.

Math Clubs

Miss Moyer explains a complicated proof to the senior club members.

Nine to the ninth power is a big number, and the members of one of this year's math clubs spent some time learning just how big it really is. Interested upperclassmen who have an average of 85 or above in mathematics compose these groups which study the advanced phases of the subject. Films and outside speakers help explain intricate thought problems, different bases and number systems.

Christian Forum

This year the members of Christian Forum gave money during the Christmas season to the Chambliss Children's Home and during Easter sponsored a special party for the children's entertainment. During Thanksgiving, the club donated both food and clothing to needy families. Every two weeks, a guest speaker shares his views with the girls and discusses Christian concepts.

Rabbi Samuel April gave an interesting talk to the Christian Forum.

Christian Youth

The Christian Youth Clubs serve as organizations for seventh through tenth graders who are interested in enriching their own lives as well as those of others. These clubs have speakers several times each month. In addition, they aid the less fortunate by collecting money and food.

Senior Glee Club

President Susan Troy plays while Sherred Milligan—Vice-president, Carol Rothberger—Treasurer, and Kathy Thomison—Secretary sing along.

Whether singing for their own enjoyment or rehearsing for a special program, the members of the various glee clubs seem to hold the idea that "practice makes perfect". Introducing new hymns to the student body, the Jr. Glee Club often performs during chapel. One of the highlights of the Christmas season was the program of music presented by the Sr. Glee Club and the McCallie Glee Club.

Latin Club

This year saw the initiation of GPS' first Latin Club. Eighth grade Latin students who have a B or better average are eligible. They study Roman life and Roman customs. The year was highlighted with a Roman banquet.

Members discuss the year's plans with their sponsor, Mrs. Alfred Smith.

Leading Christmas Carols in Latin are Emily Chamberlain, secretary; Dana Leventhal, treasurer; Amy Schmidt, Vice-president and Gena Stephenson, president.

Pep Club

Christy and Francie check the attendance at a game.

Kay puts up a poster to encourage better attendance at games.

Two representatives from each class, as well as the cheerleaders from each grade, are chosen for the Pep Club. These vivacious girls attempt to keep up school spirit by making posters and supporting the various athletic events.

- 7th—Francie Thompson
- 8th—Christy Gerow
- 9th—Julie Robinson and Allison Goree
- 10th—Pat Lee and Jane Demos
- 11th—Janice Card and Candy Auten
- 12th—Peggy Bridgers and Kay Reisman (President)

Pep Club members work on appealing posters which heighten student interest in the sports program.

Senior and Junior

Whether playing a lively game of Bingo, breaking the traditional pinata, or presenting a simple play, when in Spanish Club do as the Spanish do. The various activities of this newly formed club provide all participants with opportunities to further their knowledge of Spanish culture. First year Spanish students compose the junior club. Second and third year students may join the Senior Spanish Club.

Tuba Johnson keeps the club in hysterics with her pantomime.

The Senior Class

Elizabeth Huff
President

Peggy Bridgers
Vice-president

When it's your last year, you see and remember things that didn't seem so important before. It's not so much nostalgia as it is appreciation and perhaps a touch of sentimentality. The senior year is a special one. They say that every year though. Yet, it's still special for us because we've never been here before, we've never been the "example" before and we've never been faced with our futures as we have been this year. We grew up during our senior year, but that is only because we had to; we had to be the masters of our lives. GPS grew to mean a great deal more and we became aware that we would miss it after all. There are some things which are almost symbolic of our life at GPS: those little things that we never noticed until we realized that we would never see them again. These are the things we could never forget about our six years here.

For the Class of '67, our graduating year meant even more because we realized we were the leaders in this new era that had been ushered in. We know this and we're proud to have been a part of it and proud of the little bit we may have been able to contribute.

Each of us will probably hope that GPS is a little better because we have passed through it. We know we have procured a great deal here, both scholastically and otherwise; and we trust we have returned a small portion of it. We owe a great debt to the school, yet we realize there is no measure for gratitude.

Epilogue

The annual of this school year will appear complete in 179 pages, yet the endeavors behind this publication will stretch much farther than the covers of this book. The endless hours of work, worry, and laughter will, in a sense, be culminated in this edition; but the experiences and friendships gained through the production of this yearbook will continue. The only reward we, the editors, seek, besides our personal satisfaction, is the knowledge that our book will, in some minor way, make permanent some girl's memory of this school year. Though our book may not be perfect in workmanship, we trust it will be a perfect picture of that kaleidoscopic life which you, the reader, have created this year.

To my Humphrey Bud

Well, we have lived another horrible year at G.P.S. (together - ~~we~~ 'he') - I swear

if you call me goose one more time, I personally will beat your bottom. Remember - "is the season to be crucified" - The dynamic duo shall live on in the hearts of all as the grossest, nastiest, but sweetest

~~couple~~ ^{togetherness} couple around (of course) - I find our excursions, fight, sneaking off at lunch and everything else

"HARD to Believe"

oh well what's it. Thank you Sal for giving me alot of fun this year I enjoyed it even if you didn't - "Humboldt shall live forever as the roses fall

those who ^(pen) treasure him - your pen is sketching

Please really stay the funny Sally with the yellow corvair: able to accept anyone...

walking (but) humor

Love ya,

me (Gru -)
